Informal burial for missing local man

By Steve Marschke

The investigation into the disappearance of a West Sacramento man appears to be heading towards a bizarre conclusion. Pending the results of a coroner's report in Sacramento County, police now believe the man died of natural causes and was buried in a makeshift grave near Discovery Park in Sacramento.

Robert Lee Harbough, a 59-year old resident of a local trailer park, was last seen alive on June 2 driving a motor home. He was terminally ill with cancer.

"His vehicle was found abandoned on the 12th," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento. It had been "ransacked," and "a few of the items in it, including his cellular phone, were missing."

Adding to the mystery were indications that the motor home had been to Oregon and Santa Cruz -- and had been involved in a traffic accident and disturbance in Santa Cruz -- between the time of Harbough's disappearance and the time the motor home was found in midtown Sacramento.

Police found that Harbough's cellular phone saw continued use after the disappearance, and checked the numbers it had been used to call.

One number led to the discovery of Michael Kuin, 30, of Sacramento, who "told police he was a domestic violence counselor," said Moore. "That was the same story the person involved in the Santa Cruz incident told local police, and it rang a bell."

In Kuin, said Moore, police found "a very emotionally disturbed individual who ultimately admitted to us he had buried the victim. He found the victim deceased, and kept him with him for awhile. Due to (Kuin's) emotional state, he felt the victim was talking to him and told him he should be buried."

Kuin is believed to have buried Harbough -- whose body showed no obvious signs of trauma -- in a shallow grave near Garden Highway.

Kuin could face charges related to theft of the motor home and items in it, or for illegal burial, said Moore. It did not immediately appear he would face murder charges.

Crime spree expected on Yolo Shortline

By David Weller

Willing customers will get the opportunity to be robbed in genuine old-western style next month.

Train expedition organizers are reporting that there are only 40 out of 200 tickets left for the July 1 trip from Southport to Clarksburg.

The outing, organized and backed by Yolo Shortline, will be a 3 hour round trip through the farms and delta lands of South Yolo County, and is expected to be interrupted suddenly by a band of roaming outlaws, who will steal the cargo and rob the passengers.

Proceeds from the outing will be donated to the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department. Tickets for the excursion are $17.50, and are available through Parks and Community Services at 373-5860.

In addition to the price of the ticket, passengers can purchase "robbery tokens," with one copy safely stashed away for tax purposes, another copy will be stolen at gun-point by the infamous Sierra Outlaw gang.

THE SIERRA OUTLAWS: rumored to have a little surprise in store for unwary train passengers.

The train will leave at 1:30 pm on July 1 from South River Road and Jefferson Boulevard and is expected to arrive back in West Sacramento by 4:30 pm.

Apartment owner donates space for preschool education program

By David Weller

When Kent Salveson of EEXCEL Program Incorporated bought the Sandalwood Apartments three months ago, he was not aware that the educational program being run there would fit in so well with the programs he has set up in other apartments his company owns.

"We are very pro-education in terms of families and children. Our focus is to bring in education wherever we can. Their program fits in very nicely with what we do," Salveson said.

The Washington Unified School District has been renting an apartment at Sandalwood for a couple of years where it runs an English language training program for the Southeast Asian residents.

In keeping with his commitment to help bring educational programs into his apartment complexes, Salveson has donated an apartment to the district adjacent to the one now being used in order to help the district expand the program.

In addition he has promised to spend as much as $3,000 to make any modifications to the apartment that may be necessary.

The Washington Unified School District has been running an English Language training program at Sandalwood Apartments on Evergreen Blvd for the Southeast Asian residents for a few years now.

"When we first bought the building, Cindy Thompson (the teacher who runs the program) approached us to let us know what they are doing. I think she was afraid we might shut them down," Salveson said.

In a pleasant surprise to the district, Salveson instead offered to help in its efforts to expand the program. The current class is funded through a federal grant program. The district hopes to use the additional apartment for a preschool program, if it can get another grant.

"Our current program is phenomenally successful," said Dr. Sarah Taylor, a grant writer for the district. She says that the residents' eagerness to participate in the classes is one indicator of the program's success.

Because Cindy Thompson has volunteered to extend her hours into the afternoon, the district will be able to expand the current program by a few hours per week by the beginning of the new school year.

If the district is able to get a new grant, it plans to launch a full scale pre-school program, which would include parent participation, pre-math, and language development components.

About Salveson's desire to participate in the program, Taylor said, "It is terrific to have this kind of business support. He wants to help the community through this program."

According to Salveson, he also plans to begin working with U.C. Davis to bring his own tutoring program at Sandalwood. At other apartments owned by his company, he has set up educational centers with tutoring programs.

His company's name, EEXCEL, reflects his desire to bring educational opportunities to the homes of the low-income residents who live in his buildings, he says. EEXCEL is an anagram for Educational Excellence for Children with Environmental Limitations.

Salveson says he first thought of the need for educational centers in apartment buildings in 1987. He had just finished building a "typical" apartment building in Southern California when he met a woman working at El Pollo Loco.

"She was a single mother, working two jobs to support five children, typical of people in our buildings." From his conversation with her, he realized that she was working so hard because she wanted the same things for her children that he wanted for his.

Through a conversation with the dean of education at USC, he decided that the best he could do for families in her situation was to help bring education into their homes.

His plans for Sandalwood include a mobile library, a medical unit, and within six to nine months, a tutoring program.

State assembly hopefuls Thomson, Kaplan meet with local Democrats

By David Weller

A couple of local democratic hopefuls got an early start last week in vying for their party's nomination for the assembly seat about to be vacated by longtime assemblyman Tom Hannigan.

Two potential candidates, Helen Thomson and Douglas Kaplan, spoke to the West Sacramento Democratic Club.

Yolo County Supervisor Helen Thomson, who announced her intention to run two weeks ago, was the first to address the audience of about 20 local democrats.

She pointed first to her long history as a political and social activist as reasons why she is qualified to take on the legislative post.

As part of her democratic heritage, she told of her childhood in Boston.

"I was born on the same street as Tip O'Neill's home. The highlight of my life was being introduced to him."

The eldest of eight children, she says there was no choice of political parties in her family. They were born democrats for whom school, education, and a strong work ethic were emphasized.

Thomson, who has been a professional nurse since the early 1960's stressed her interest in health care and educational issues. She served on the Davis School Board for twelve years, and has been a county supervisor for twelve years.

She is "interested in the services government can bring to people," she said.

"What happens at the state level effects local government. There is a legitimate role for government in the lives of people."

She wants to involve constituents in the governmental process by keeping in touch, holding town meetings, and keeping constituent services alive. "If we can involve people more in government, we can reduce the cynicism," she said.

we need to focus on policy.

In response to a question on welfare reform, she said that the GAIN employment training program has been an effective program that is not getting enough of a chance to work.

She also indicated that health care reform might help in the struggle to reform welfare. "If we can work out a way that at least some women with families on AFDC (Aide to Families with Dependant Children) could at get some form of health care, we can at least begin to encourage them to get off AFDC."

Her opponent, Douglas Kaplan, has served as Yolo County's Public guardian for the last twelve years.

Although he has not officially declared his candidacy, he said that he has every intention of running.

"I have not officially announced my candidacy, but I have taken several steps in that direction," he told the audience.

Kaplan brought up political reform and health care reform as key issues needing to be addressed by government.

"It gets down to what is going on in society right now, the decisions, or lack of decisions our lawmakers are making."

"Who is talking about real reform, real services? There are a few, but most of them will be out of office soon," he said.

In regard to health care, Kaplan said:

"I would like to see universal coverage in California. If Oregon and Hawaii can do it, so can we. California has the eighth largest economy in the world.

He suggested that an emphasis on universal prenatal care would help save money and make health care more affordable within the state. "We're not dealing with this intelligently," he said.

Among other ideas for going about health care reform, Kaplan suggested an "insurance pool" which could be set up as a means of covering high risk California residents.

He also raised the possibility of placing legal constraints on insurers. "We could require all insurance companies, as the cost of doing business in California, to cover everything."

Council approves controversial 'Gateway' housing development -- with conditions

By David Weller

In a 4-0 vote Wednesday night, the city council decided to uphold the planning commission's decision to allow construction of a new housing development South of the barge canal and east of Jefferson Boulevard. The fifth vote on the council, Roland Hensley, was not present.

In a last minute meeting with Craig Prouty, the developer of Gateway Development, city officials got him to agree to move the main entrance of the development from South River Road to a proposed eastern extension of Devon Road.

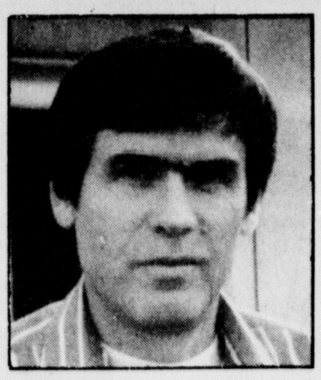
A kiss is but a kiss -- or is it?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last week, when the rain was pouring down, I decided to do something I haven't done in ages -- curl up with a good book. The only problem was that I was too lazy to go down to the library and check one out. "Why don't you read this," my daughter suggested, handing me a copy of Anton Pavlovich Chekhov's The Kiss.

"What's it about?" I asked, thumbing through the pages.

"It's one of his short stories," she explained, "and it's about this poor little man who accidentally gets kissed by a woman he never sees again. It's really sad, but I think you'll like it."

The Kiss was published way back in 1887 and its hero is a young army officer named Ryabovich (which means pock-marked or pitted complexion in Russian). Not only is Ryabovich unattractive to women, he is also painfully shy and not very clever.

To make a short story short, Ryabovich's brigade stops for one night in a small village and he (along with his fellow officers) is invited by a retired general to take tea at a fancy estate not far from the village. Being embarrassingly timid and fully conscious of his own insignificance, Ryabovich takes no part in the general merriment and eventually wanders off on his own. He spends some time in a billiards-room, declines an invitation to play a game, and begins to make his way back to the ballroom. He can hear all the laughter and other party noise off in the distance and is reminded that, "Not once in his life has he danced, not once has he put his arm around an attractive young woman's waist."

Adrift in his thoughts, Ryabovich gets lost in the huge house and stumbles into a room which is quiet and very dark. As his eyes struggle to get adjusted to the lack of light, he is astonished to hear hurried footsteps, the rustle of a dress and a breathless female voice whisper, "At last." Then, before he knows what is happening to him, "Two soft, sweet-smelling arms encircle his neck, a burning cheek is pressed against his, and there is the sound of a kiss."

For the first time in his life, Ryabovich has been kissed. Evidently a young lady who had set up a rendezvous with a lover had by mistake kissed the wrong man in the dark. She is horrified to discover the truth and hurries out of the room. Ryabovich, on the other hand, has had his entire being aroused. There is finally something beautiful and loving in his otherwise very uneventful life.

"How far have you gotten," my daughter asked as she plopped down beside me on the couch.

"Ryabovich just got kissed," I said.

"Well, you better stop right there," she suggested. "The rest is just too sad."

"Really?"

"Yeah. He never finds out who the girl was and his life becomes hopeless and full of despair again."

"But maybe that's not as tragic as you think?" I said.

"Are you kidding?" she asked, grabbing the book from me. "Just listen to this."

SPORTS

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 1995 USA Track & Field Championships held at Hughes Stadium during last week's bad weather attracted 49,871 spectators over five days, including 43,501 over the last three. The track meet cost approximately $300,000 to stage and should turn a profit. Michael Johnson, the 27-year old Texan, won the 200-meter dash and the 400 meter title and accomplished what no other male runner has done since Maxie Long in 1899. Despite having run five races in four days, Johnson won the wind-aided 200 final by 0.33 seconds. The Olympic champion Mike Marsh was a distant sixth!

The Giants (27-24) are in the middle of a 13 game road trip and another pitcher has bit the dust. Left-hander Trevor Wilson is returning to the Bay Area to have his pitching arm examined by team doctors and shortstop Royce Clayton was struck in the head with a fastball and is listed day to day.

The Giants will play an important four game series with the Dodgers in Los Angeles starting Thursday.

The Giants did have some bright news last week as Mike Benjamin was named N.L. player of the week. In six games, he had 18 hits in 30 at-bats (.600), including a major league record 14 hits in three games and six hits in one game -- tying a franchise record.

The A's (27-24) had a good week but still trail the first place Angels by three games. Rickey Henderson and Mark McGwire are still playing hurt and are in and out of the starting lineup.

The A's are off Thursday before they travel to Texas for a four game series with the Rangers beginning Friday.

In the boxing world, West Sac's undefeated Willie Jorrin will be fighting on national TV (ABC) July 9 at the Reno/Sparks Convention Center in Reno. Jorrin (10-0, 7 KOs) will meet Fernando Sanchez (8-3) in an eight-round bout on the IBF junior/lightweight championship card featuring Champion Eddie Hobson (26-0, 13 KOs) against Tracy Patterson (52-3-1, 37 KOs).

Guest opinion:

The 'State of the City,' as seen by Mayor Cindy Tuttle

Editor's note: a "State of the City" address by Mayor Tuttle will be part of tomorrow evening's festivities at the annual city Community Reception, beginning at 5:30 p.m. Thursday at the California Trucking Association. Tickets are $10 each.

Mayor Tuttle submitted the following comments in response to a request from the News-Ledger.

By Cindy Tuttle, Mayor
West Sacramento

With the current fiscal year about to end, it is timely to take stock of our recent accomplishments and the progress that has been made towards our goal of becoming the "Premier City of the Sacramento Valley."

Throughout the year, we have remained focused on our goal and, in spite of the slow economic recovery, have continued to make progress in its pursuit. Our strategies have remained the same: plan for progress, build community consensus, establish a strong financial base, and provide quality service. Although no one would have wished for an economic slowdown, we took full advantage of the lull to better position ourselves for the upcoming "window of opportunity" that a strong economy will bring.

In the Southport area, the Southport Framework Plan was adopted, concluding a major four-year planning effort that will guide the orderly development of the southern half of the city. Major progress was also made with the design, financing and right-of-way work on the Palamidessi Bridge, allowing the project to progress towards a fall 1995 start construction date.

Meanwhile, as abandoned structures along the Sacramento River in the Triangle and Raley's Landing areas gave way to the wrecker's ball and bulldozers, a multi-million dollar view of the State Capitol opened up, revealing the potential of our riverfront. The future of that same area was further defined this year by the adoption of the joint West Sacramento/Sacramento Riverfront Master Plan.

Elsewhere, we saw West Capitol Courtyard open to its residents; completion of landscaping at the Bryte Bend Water Treatment Plant; and start of the Harbor Boulevard Widening Project. Most recently, we saw completion of improvements to the Wastewater Treatment Plant that will better enable us to avoid exceeding our discharge limitations, and to accommodate future development.

Organizationally, the city has also continued to move forward. The police department has made several visual and operational improvements to enhance both its image and effectiveness. The newly designed police vehicles and the recently implemented Community Oriented Policing Program were two good examples of those improvements, as was acquisition of the site for the soon-to-be-built new policy facility. Additionally, an operational analysis of the public works and community development departments is currently underway for the purpose of increasing operational efficiencies and customer service within those organizations.

This past year was also one of increasing cooperation; both within the local community and regionally. Our partnerships with the school district and the Chamber of Commerce continued to grow and benefit the community at large. A recent join project with the school district, made possible through that partnership, provides for new playground equipment to be installed at six sites throughout the city. The Chamber of Commerce partnership has been beneficial, as well. The Chamber has assumed a facilitative role in resolving governmental related issues of the business community and has joined forces with the city on several occasions to address regional issues. The city also continues to benefit from cooperative agreements with our local Reclamation District,

Letters to the Editor

About Gateway:

At the June 14 city council meeting, considerable frustration was expressed by several members of the public at not being allowed to address the council on Item #9 -- continued consideration of the appeal of the Planning Commission's approval of the Southport Gateway Vesting Tentative Subdivision Map No. 4121.

The public hearing on this issue was closed on April 19, and this matter was continued to the June 14 meeting for final determination. The June 14 staff report to the city council made recommendations based on consideration of the testimony taken at the April 19 meeting. The purpose of this process was to make a quasi-judicial determination and, as such, was not a typical legislative matter.

According to the city attorney, taking comments on the matter would require reopening the public hearing. Staff would then need to prepare a new staff report to address the additional testimony, and final determination would again be continued into the future. This scenario could go on forever, but two things prevent it. One is that the applicant is assured by law of a timely determination; and the other is that sufficient information had been received by the council to make an informed decision.

The laws under which we operate ensure a fair process. Among other reasons, we follow them to avoid litigation. After considering the city attorney's comments, we elected not to reopen the public hearing and to proceed with our determinations. I believe that we were operating properly under law, and that we made an informed decision based on previous testimony and the facts of the matter presented in the staff reports.

I am confident the unanimous vote of the council to deny the appeal is well-founded, and that the safety concerns of the community relating to the Gateway project have been adequately mitigated by the modified conditions of approval.

O.J. trial

Borrowing a word from Marcia Clark, I take "umbrage" to the reader who called and urged public pressure on Channel 58 to drop the O.J. Simpson trial. My middle age fascination with Marcia Clark is even greater than my childhood obsession with Nancy Drew. Watching her take on the "Dream Team" (or Rogues Gallery) is a joy to behold. If I could have my druthers, the next winning presidential ticket would be "Clinton and Clark" (as in Hillary and Marcia).

As a C-Span junkie, there's little else to watch on the present political scene. Every channel is clogged with the blankety-blank Republicans gleefully dismantling the government. Merrily they go along, wreaking havoc and misery for years to come. And talk about revenge of the nerds; never have I seen so many truly obnoxious people gathered in one place at one time. If it isn't Al Dimato ranting on one channel, it is Alan Simpson whining on another. Throw in a little Phil Gramm, Jesse Helms, Bob Dornan (and of course, Rush) and the stomach turns. I understand that every man is loved by God and his mother, but how could such a bunch of nincompoops ever get elected to office?

So watching the trial has almost become a refuge. My first alert to the terrible murders was even more traumatic than most of the general public. My son was the first to tell me a famous black actor had been arrested for killing his wife. He was trying to be helpful but in catching only a glimpse of the broadcast, he identified the culprit as Bill Cosby. Dazed with shock and disbelief, unable to imagine sweet dimpled Bill even swatting a fly, I remember surfing through the channels looking for details. It was actually a relief to find out it was O.J. Simpson.

Then, a few days later during the famous freeway chase, I had another shock. Never being a sports fan, I was horrified to hear the crowds on the freeway yelling "Juice, Juice" to the passing Bronco. I commented to my husband that it seemed incredible that people could be so cruel. How could they yell for a man's execution (like in "give him the juice" electric chair style) when they knew he was on the verge of suicide. I kept tsk-tsking until I noticed my husband was staring at me with that special expression he reserves for occasions when he feels truly awed by my stupidity. That's when I

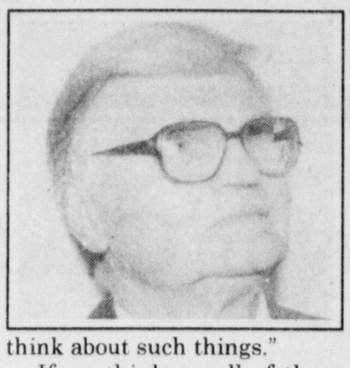
Pastor's column

By John T. Seay, Outreach Pastor
Anna St. Baptist Church



One of the greatest needs of the world is for positive thinking. There is so much negative thinking in this world that we need to think on good things. As apostle Paul set forth in Phil. 4:8 (n.i.v.): "Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is admirable -- if anything is excellent or praiseworthy -- think about such things."

If we think on all of these things as Paul has mentioned, we would have a full-time job thinking positively. We need more positive thinking on television newscasts to offset the negative news we hear so often. There are good things happening in our country, and we need to hear about them. Prov. 11:27 (n.i.v.) states, "He who seeks good finds goodwill, but evil comes to him who searches for it." If we want good things to happen to us we must seek to do good things for others. As stated in Matt 7:12 (n.i.v.): "...do to others what you would have them do to you..." If you want to see a beautiful person, here is one way, as Isaiah stated in 52:7 (n.i.v.): "How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of those who bring good tidings, who proclaim salvation, who say to Zion, "Your God reigns."

Let us think in our hearts and proclaim with our mouths good things that will lift up the spirits of all mankind.

first learned about the nickname.

Still, he should know I have a problem with nicknames. When I returned to California in 1984 after living abroad, I was confused to hear so many people mentioning the "Duke." Finally, I asked my husband why everyone was suddenly talking so much about John Wayne. That's when I learned our former zombie of a governor also had a nickname.

Anyway, I will keep watching the trial, clinging to a faint hope that justice will prevail. I don't believe in the death penalty but if there was ever a man who deserves to spend his life in mandatory cloister, it's Orenthal James Simpson.

Better than the bridge

At the June 14 city council meeting, an angry small crowd left near the end as they were not allowed public input on the appeal continuation of the Planning Commission's approval of Tentative Map No. 4121, the Southport Gateway Project; thus, the approval is upheld lest a court appeal is filed.

Since SGP is to be located just south of the Barge Canal, would occupants of those buildings be adversely affected if tourist-type ships/boats ever should come up and down the Barge Canal regularly?

And if our decision-makers should ever back off from the concept of enlarging the Port of Sacramento, should we not rethink the concept of the Industrial Bridge? (...from industrial to tourist...?)

How far would that "industrial bridge money" go towards: (1) a South River Road four-lane lift bridge and (2) a six-lane "surface" lift bridge from Harbor Blvd. south across the Barge Canal to/from Jefferson Blvd. in our Southport area and (3) a second two-lane lift bridge on Jefferson south of Stone Blvd. and (4) a "partial" bridge across the Sacramento River...to I-5 going south and from I-5 north...? This last (partial) bridge should be built no further south than Sacramento's Fruitridge Road, giving West Sacramento's Southport residents/visitors a chance to use I-5 for relatively easy access to/ from Sacramento's Florin Road. Construction of the partial bridge should make it relatively easy to cross I-5 and connect accordingly should Sacramento's opposition reverse itself in the future...that might happen should Southport's home development ever get too far ahead of its retail/commercial development; i.e., Sacramento would be making a pitch for continuing its hold on the sales tax revenue of an expanded Southport...but Sacramento wouldn't think that way, would they? Would not sooner construction of the aforementioned smaller, flexible lift bridges and the partial I-5 bridge make more sense? Would we not save many dollars? But could we get Congress to agree to change the details of that federal grant tentatively scheduled for only the larger Industrial Bridge? And don't forget the millions saved from not having to modify the Pioneer Bridge.

WILLIAM A. LOWELL
West Sacramento

Lockstep majority

At a recent meeting of the city council, the business community of West Sacramento was sold out by the Chamber of Commerce. The president of the Chamber of Commerce gave the blessing to the Southport Plan. This plan down zoned commercial property and also made ridiculous changes in residential lot sizes. This quite simply reduces the value of property, should the Chamber of Commerce defend rights of citizens and business people or have the subsidies given the Chamber of Commerce by the city bought and paid for their support.

Last week the Chamber of Commerce did not contest vigorously enough the increase in the lighting and landscaping fees. Were these fee increases justified? Why was most of this money transferred to the general fund? Will it's surplus be used elsewhere to subsidize some pet project? Will this excess landscaping charge be used to cut grass on public parks that should not be funded in this way? The business person who rents to tenants in the industrial and commercial areas of our city has a hard time finding tenants let alone passing on increased fees, the current tenants cannot afford to pay. The city council must work harder to retain and support existing businesses. A healthy business environment will do more for progress than all the studies, pontifications, and manipulation of the various rate structures. If the city owns large pieces of property in an assessment district does this shift all the cost to other owners in a given area or is that assessment met by all the taxpayers? The Chamber of Commerce should ask some of these questions. They probably would if they were not subsidized.

How about garbage? Where is the Chamber of Commerce on this? There is a garbage monopoly in our city. There is no way to get a fair deal with a monopoly. The garbage company sets the price for all garbage when the city council decides who pays what. A system with this procedure can never be fair. Where is the Chamber of Commerce on this? Front loader bins for apartments, mobile home parks, and business should be served by at least three competing companies. Business people should be allowed to dicker and make the best deal for their situation. When the city gets into the act, it just raises the cost. Large construction bins should also be handled by the free market. Competition lowers prices.

Micro management of business costs and imprudent changes in zoning and all the petty things done since incorporation is in all probability the reason our city has not advance as expected. Business people like to run their business in peace, not fight with the city council lead by the lockstep majority.

$1 to breathe

This letter is directed to all the residents of West Sacramento who may or may not be aware of what is in store for us if some business operators in this city get their way.

First, there is this monstrosity called the Port of Sacramento, located in the heart of our city, who wants to rip us off for $35,000,000 in assessments to keep it in business.

Secondly, there is another firm called J.P.A. who also wants to rip us off for "who knows how much", and the only benefit that may be feasible would be the assessment to heighten the levies around West Sacramento -- this one just may be of benefit to all West Sacramento sometime in the future.

We are already assessed more than $1 per day just to breathe in this county, and if you get a contractor to re-roof your home and he has to get a permit from the county to do the job (even if the roof is leaking), you guessed it -- your taxes will go up as much as it costs for the job. They say this is an improvement to your property. This just happened to me, so if any of you can roof your own homes without a permit, you will save bucks. I know the county needs money; however, I think this is a sneaky way to get it.

So wake up, sleepy West Sacramento, and let your voices be heard before it is too late. We should be entitled to a vote before being assessed. Once they get their hands in our pockets, it is for the long haul.

Hearing scheduled for two local officers

A preliminary hearing for two West Sacramento police officers charged with assault and assault under cover of authority is scheduled for this Thursday and Friday in Yolo County Superior Court.

Officers Jeffrey Neuman and Donald Donoho both earlier entered pleas of "not guilt" concerning the charges, which involved their handling of the arrest of Jesse Beltran after Beltran fled following a stop for "suspected gang activity."

Judge Stevens will decide whether there is sufficient evidence to bind the pair over for trial. The preliminary hearing begins at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

Avoid city traffic tickets: keep track of new rules

By Steve Marschke

There are several new things you shouldn't do with your vehicles in West Sacramento, unless you're interested in receiving a hefty fine from the police:

■ The section of the Sacramento River levee from the Broderick Boat Ramp to the Tower Bridge is now off limits to motor vehicles. Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Dept. said the new rule is to thwart continued erosion of the levee.

■ It remains to be against the law to leave a detached truck trailer on any city surface street. Police say they will soon switch from passing out warnings to violators to passing out $250 tickets.

■ Jefferson Blvd. near the Touchstone apartments (just north of Linden Rd. on the west side) is now off limits to the parking of vehicles taller than six feet. Lt. Moore said this new rule is to combat the visual obstruction trucks have been causing to traffic near the Linden/Jefferson intersection.

and various county JPA's (Joint Powers Authorities).

Perhaps the most visible liaison over the past year is what has developed between West Sacramento and Sacramento. Although a spirit of cooperation has existed in some areas of mutual interest in the past, such as fire response and communications, the general relationship was competitive rather than cooperative. Over the last year, however, considerable attention has been paid to the necessity of regional cooperation for regional success. A prime example of positive movement in this area was the recent adoption of the Riverfront Master Plan by both West Sacramento and Sacramento. The joint plan was the fruit of a planning effort of both cities to maximize the benefits of our predominate regional asset -- the Sacramento River. Out of this cooperation has come increased interest and commitment to jointly proceed with implementation of the plans, and various regional river-based events.

These planning efforts, capital improvements, organizational enhancements, and cooperative liaisons have all moved us closer to our goal.

During the next fiscal year, we should see completion of Harbor Boulevard, adoption of a child care ordinance, groundbreaking for the Palamidessi Bridge, completion of the Valhalla Sound Wall, and completion of the new police facility, to mention a few. And, as the "window of opportunity" opens, the City of West Sacramento will be well-positioned to take full advantage of it!

Edison sacrificed family life for brilliant career

BIOGRAPHY
EDISON: Inventing the Century
Neil Baldwin
Hyperion. 530 pages.
Thomas Edison was a brilliant inventor and shrewd businessman, but as this new biography points out, his children paid a price for their father's single-mindedness. Depression and alcoholism plagued Edison's children by two marriages. At one point he even paid one of his sons to change his last name because he felt embarrassed by his offspring's business ventures.

SUCCESS
THE LEADER IN YOU: How to Win Friends, Influence People, and Succeed in a Changing World
Dale Carnegie & Associates
Simon & Schuster. 239 pp.
Forty years after his death, Dale Carnegie is still "writing the book" on success and how to achieve it. The lessons he taught are the basis for a worldwide organization, and this book takes a fresh approach in expounding on these principles. Among the topics covered are "Respecting the Dignity of Others," "Setting Goals," "Creating a Positive Mental Attitude," and "Expressing Genuine Interest in Others."

FICTION
BATMAN: Nightfall
Dennis O'Neil
Bantam. 349 pages.
After you check out the latest Batman movie release, curl up with this novelization of a caped crusader adventure. Bruce Wayne's alter ego takes on Bane, one of the worst evildoers ever. A little more "meat on the bone" than a Batman comic book.

Devon meets Jefferson several hundred yards to the south of South River Road, and is expected to cause fewer traffic problems.

Another requirement, which has not changed, is that the developer will build a south-bound turn lane from Jefferson Blvd onto South River Road which will allow cars turning east into the development at South River Road to stack twelve deep.

In addition, the city has taken itself out of the loop of responsibility for possible traffic dangers by requiring that the developer bear the burden of proof in getting Caltrans to approve the development.

Because Jefferson Blvd is a state highway, Caltrans must has final approval over any actions that might change safety conditions over the bridge. Caltrans has recently presented city representative with statistical which seemed to indicate that the Jefferson Blvd corridor crossing over the bridge is no more dangerous than other state highways.

The Gateway Development has been a source of controversy between many Southport residents and city government for several months.

Residents have complained about high population densities in the development, the allowance of "zero lot lines", traffic hazards on the Jefferson Blvd bridge, and the difficulty in getting information from city government in time to prepare for public meetings.

Although many residents came to Wednesday night's meeting ready to speak, Mayor Cindy Tuttle, following the advice of the city attorney, denied them permission.

Because the agenda item had been continued from several weeks prior, the public hearing had been closed.

The fact that the public hearing was closed, however, did not prevent city staff from meeting in private with the developer during the city council meeting.

Not being allowed to speak, and angry that their appeal had been denied, several of the residents were heard discussing the possibility of a lawsuit against the city as the meeting closed.

DARYL from p. 2

"What are you doing?" I asked as she quickly located a paragraph she had underlined near the end of the story.

"And the whole world, the whole of life," she read, "struck Ryabovich as a meaningless, futile joke. As he turned his eyes from the water to the sky, he remembered how fate had accidentally caressed him -- in the guise of an unknown woman. He recalled the dreams and visions of that summer and his life seemed terribly empty, miserable, and colourless."

As my daughter read on, my mind began to wander and I found myself recalling a few of the more meaningful kisses in my life, and the fact that for some reason the majority of them took place in public parks.

"You're not even listening to me," my daughter suddenly said, poking me.

"Yes I am," I lied, but I was really thinking back to a long ago spring morning in William Land Park and a little poem by Leigh Hunt which Ryabovich would have understood:

Jenny kiss'd me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in,
Time you thief, who love to get
Sweets into your list, put that in!
Say I'm weary, say I'm sad,
Say that health
and wealth have miss'ed me,
Say I'm growing old, but add,
Jenny kiss'd me.

Party for Trinity's 50th anniversary

Trinity Presbyterian Church will culminate its 50th anniversary celebration with two days of programs and worship this weekend, June 24-25.

Among those attending the event will be Jean Broadley, wife of Trinity's first resident pastor, the Rev. Joseph Broadley. Also scheduled to attend are the Revs. George Telle and Archie Marston, as well as current pastor Rev. Dave Templin.

The celebration begins at 4 p.m. on Saturday with a fellowship hour, featuring games for children. A barbecue follows at 5 p.m. and a program celebrating Trinity's heritage at 6 p.m. One of the program's highlights will be the burying of a time capsule, to be unearthed on Trinity's 75th birthday, in 2020.

On Sunday, the 10 a.m. worship service will be followed by an 11 a.m. reception, featuring 50 years of church memorabilia on display.

Trinity is located at 1500 Park Blvd. Those planning to attend the barbecue should RSVP to Sue Glenn at 371-4346. For more information, contact the church office at 371-5875.
